In response to the upcoming meeting to be held on September 17, 2014:

No more excuses! Take action now! Populations of urban coyotes need to be controlled. Aliso Woods Canyon in Aliso Viejo has an excessive population of coyotes with no natural controls in place. Coyotes have become invasive and aggressive. Rabies is prevalent in the population. This dangerous situation is occurring in many areas, it is time to take action. In Aliso Viejo five or more schools directly connect to the canyon; as well trails within the canyon are heavily used.
